

FOR FAMILIES LIVING WITH PET CANCER

Questions to bring back to your vet team

A written list makes short appointments more useful. Bring this page to your pet's primary veterinarian or oncologist. They lead diagnosis and treatment. This guide helps you remember what to ask and what you have noticed at home.

START WITH THESE THREE

- ☐ What should a good day look like for my pet over the next few weeks?

- ☐ Which changes should I call about the same day, and which can wait for the next visit?

- ☐ If my pet stops eating or drinking normally, how long should I wait before I call?

MORE QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER

- ☐ What can I do at home to keep my pet comfortable?

- ☐ Are there foods, supplements or home remedies I should check with you before trying?

- ☐ Which side effects of treatment are expected, and which ones need a call?

- ☐ How will we know if the plan is working, and how will we decide together if it is not?

- ☐ Who do I call between appointments, and after hours?

What I noticed at home since the last visit

You do not need to interpret what you see. Write it down with the date, and let your vet team do the interpreting.

Comfort

Restlessness, trouble settling, panting at rest, flinching, a cat
holding herself stiffly

Appetite and water

Eating less, skipping favorites, drinking much more or much less

Mobility

Stairs, slippery floors, shorter walks, a perch or tower no longer used

Sleep and rest

Sleeping more or less, night
pacing, new hiding spots

Behavior and routine

Interest in family, new accidents,
grooming in cats

GOOD DAYS AND HARD DAYS: TWO WEEKS

Day 8 G M H	Day 9 G M H	Day 10 G M H	Day 11 G M H	Day 12 G M H	Day 13 G M H	Day 14 G M H

Circle one a day: G = good day, M = mixed day, H = hard day. If hard days start to outnumber good ones, tell your vet team.
